

SUBURB FACES RACE BIAS SUIT

...Black Jack, Mo., Excludes Integrated Public Housing

Washington (AP) — Implementing President Nixon's housing policy that declares racial discrimination by municipalities unlawful, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell Monday filed suit against the St. Louis, Mo., suburb of Black Jack.

Mitchell said the suit would seek to force the community to accept a federally subsidized housing project. The city has rezoned to exclude any such projects.

Mitchell's announcement at a joint news conference with Housing Secretary George M. Romney, broke six months of silence by the Justice Department since the case was referred to it by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Eight Other Suits

Mitchell also said his department was filing eight other suits alleging a pattern of racial discrimination in sale or rental of housing units, none of them against municipal governments.

A Justice Department spokesman said that the eight other suits have not yet been filed. He said the names of the defendants would not be released until the suits are filed, probably within the next few days.

The Black Jack suit was filed in U.S. District Court in St. Louis, against the city of Black Jack.

In the suit, the Justice Department seeks to strike down a zoning ordinance adopted by the Black Jack City Council last October, which prevents construction of the Park View Heights development.

Public Opposed Project

The zoning ordinance was adopted shortly after Black Jack became a separate municipal corporation on Aug. 6, 1970. The council acted in the wake of public opposition to the Park View project.

The project, sponsored by the nonprofit Park View Heights Corp., was to provide racially integrated housing for low income residents.

The suit also seeks a court order enjoining the city of Black Jack from interfering with the right of any person to secure housing and from failing to revise its zoning ordinance that Park View Heights can be built.

Mitchell said the government would move against any municipality where it could prove that blocking federally assisted or subsidized housing was racially motivated. President Nixon's statement on housing last week said the administration would not seek to force communities to accept economic integration, however.

Asked how he would differentiate between economic discrimination and racial discrimination, Mitchell said the Justice Department would have to investigate "the intentions of the parties involved, their statements and actions taken."

Romney announced proposed new guidelines for site selection of federally subsidized housing projects that places emphasis on locating them outside areas of minority concentration.

"As a general proposition, all other factors being equal projects outside areas of minority concentration will be given preference," Romney said.

Romney also said that in reviewing applications for urban renewal projects and water and sewer grants, communities that have rejected or made no effort to provide low and moderate income housing will be ineligible.

Romney and Robert L. Kunzig, head of the General Services Administration, announced the signing of an agreement under which of low will consult with HUD on availability of low income and moderate housing before selecting sites for government-owned or leased buildings.

Under the proposed site selection methods, a proposed project would be rated by HUD field personnel to be superior, adequate or poor considering several factors including whether or not it is outside existing areas of minority concentration.

SS, Medicare Benefits Top $300 Million Mark

... FOR NEBRASKANS

Nebraskans now receive more than $300 million a year in Social Security, benefits and Medicare payments.

Those figures were prepared by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at the request of Rep. Charles Thone of Lincoln.

Social Security benefits for 1970 totaled $250,664,000.

Medicare benefit payments in 1969 (the latest available annual figure) totaled $50,989,790.

Some 212,921 Nebraskans were receiving Social Security benefits at the end of 1970, including 116,173 retired workers and their 30,704 dependents.

Another 45,870 receive survivors benefits.

The number of Nebraskans enrolled in the Medicare program (in 1969) totaled 82,994.

The figures were supplied to Thone by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot Richardson.

In a letter to the congressman, Richardson noted that by the end of 1970, the Social Security program was paying monthly cash benefits to more than 26 million persons throughout the nation.

Monthly payments amounted to more than $2.6 billion, or one $470 million more than the total at the end of 1969.

The overall national total for Medicare payments during 1969 was $6.3 billion, or an increase of approximately $1 billion over 1968, Richardson wrote Thone.

The number of Americans with hospital insurance coverage averaged 20.0 million for the year.

In Lancaster County, some 18,991 persons were receiving Social Security benefits at the end of 1970. Monthly benefits amounted to $2,017,000.

Some 16,522 persons were enrolled in the Medicare program in 1969. Total payments for the year amounted to $5,533,678.

Here is a county by county look at Social Security benefits supplied to Thone.

WHITE PRIEST LED AWAY

Father James Groppi, in dark shirt at the right, a civil rights leader from Milwaukee, and Bernard Thomas of New Haven, Conn., are led to a paddy wagon by police during a demonstration at Yale University Monday. Twelve persons were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct and released. The arrests came when 350 demonstrators—Yale employees on strike and their supporters—tried to march to an enclosed Yale courtyard where commencement exercises were being held. West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, one of the recipients of honorary degrees, slipped out of the ceremonies through a side door.

ADM Area Water Samples Verified As 'Contaminated'

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

City Sanitary Engineer Jerry Obrist confirmed Monday that samples of water collected from a roadside ditch along U.S. 6 just northeast of Lincoln "are contaminated and had to come from ADM (Archer Daniels Midland)."

Obrist also said he personally believes the ADM waste problems — which have gone on for several years — will not be solved until the city "shuts off the water to the plant."

Obrist told The Star that there is no possibility that the contaminated wastes could have come from any other source.

'Only Visible Discharge'

"The only visible liquid discharge was from the ADM area," he said. "There were no other visible discharges downstream or upstream from the plant area."

A Lincoln Star newsman also spotted and collected samples of what city officials later identified as grease skim in a ditch which leads from the ADM plant to the storm ditch.

Grease skims were spotted also in the storm ditch just downstream from the plant where pools of water have collected.

The samples were collected after ADM officials earlier in the day had issued a report denying that contaminated water was emptying into the storm sewer ditch from the plant.

Doug Forsberg, western regional manager of ADM's soybean operations, said several officials checked the ditches and did not spot anything that would indicate contaminated water was coming from the plant.

State environmental health officials believe that its state stream standards may apply to that roadside ditch since it flows into Stevens Creek. State officials Monday were collecting water samples at the ADM area and at Stevens Creek.

The Nebraska water quality standards say that no residue attributable to waste water or visible films of oil or globules of grease shall be present in waters to which the standards apply.

Obrist said a standard five-day BOD (biochemical oxygen demand) test was run on samples collected at a point where Fletcher Ave. dead-ends west of 84th St. from Tuesday through Friday last week.

He said the Tuesday and Wednesday samples were contaminated and were far in excess of that allowed.

The Tuesday sample, Obrist said, contained 530 milligrams per liter of grease (none allowed) and 630 mg. per liter of BOD and 2,100 mg. of COD (chemical oxygen demand). The allowable strengths for BOD is 30 mg. and COD, 40-50 mg.

Samples collected last Wednesday contained 880 mg. of BOD, 2,200 mg. of COD and 930 mg. of grease.

ADM has a wet weather easement which does allow the plant to discharge uncontaminated water into the storm sewer ditch after a rainstorm.

Obrist said it may be that the plant is discharging water that is uncontaminated initially but which picks up the contaminants later in the plant area.

"Personally, it appears to me that the only way ADM will solve its waste problems is for the city to shut off the water to the plant until such time as necessary treatment equipment is installed at ADM," Obrist said.

Both Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and Public Utilities Director Lee Blocker were out of town and unavailable for comment on the situation.

The city's problem with ADM started two years ago when the plant's discharge of soybean wastes into the city's sewage lagoon proved to be too strong to handle without creating odors.

Lincoln Gets Permission To Purchase Bus Line Equipment

The city has received permission from the Department of Transportation to purchase "without prejudice" the Lincoln City Lines equipment.

City Atty. Dick Wood said the city received word Monday to proceed with the purchase.

Formal approval of the city's application for federal grant money has not been received yet, Wood added.

Not Normally

"Normally the city cannot purchase the equipment before notified of approval of the grant and then expect the equipment to be included as part of the items to be federally funded, he said.

The letter of no prejudice, Wood said, allows the city to proceed with the purchase and to still include the equipment in the application.

He said he had no idea when the city would receive word of whether or not the application is approved.

Preliminary Okay

The city has already received approval of the preliminary application, the first step in getting final approval.

He added that any purchase contract for Lincoln City Lines is contingent upon federal approval of the city's grant application.

Meanwhile, the City Council held two readings on an ordinance approving a contract to purchase the bus lines.

Final action on the contract is expected next Monday.

The contract calls for the city to pay National City Lines of Denver, owners of the local bus company, $162,000 for the real estate, $179,000 for the buses and other equipment and an extra amount at invoice price for the entire inventory of spare parts, fuels, lubricants and other materials and supplies at the time the city acquires the bus firm.

The contract, which after approved by the city, must then be forwarded to the National City Lines for approval by its board of directors.

The agreement states that the bus company would continue to operate the buses until July 16, the date the contract would become effective, and at most until Sept. 16.

The city would take over operations sometime between July 16 and Sept. 16 if the federal grant application is approved.

The Urban Mass Transit Administration said in its letter to the city that it was allowing the purchase now in view of the urgency created by the bus company's petition to the State Railway Commission to immediately discontinue service.

M. B. McManaman, railway commission secretary, said regarding the case to discontinue service that the commission has granted a continuation of the date for receiving briefs "until sometime in July."

McManaman said neither the bus company or the city has yet filed briefs.

He said the commission could not act on the request until after it receives the briefs and a transcript of the hearings.

A mid-June decision had been expected had briefs been filed by the time requested by the commission.

Court OKs Closing To Avert Integration

... OF SWIMMING POOLS, OTHER FACILITIES

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 Monday that officials may close swimming pools and other public facilities to avoid integrating them.

The closings are not unconstitutional since blacks and whites are treated equally, Justice Hugo L. Black reasoned in the court's rare setback for Negroes.

"It is not a case," Black said, "where a city is maintaining different sets of facilities for blacks and whites and forcing the races to remain separate in recreational or educational activities."

Jackson Blacks Lose

The ruling went against blacks in Jackson, Miss., who tried to force the city to reopen public swimming pools. They were closed after a district court ruled they could not remain segregated.

Black, in announcing the decision from the bench, cautioned that the ruling does not signal approval of "any subterfuge" for school integration. "We want no one to get any hope," he said in a 20-minute explanation to a courtroom filled with shirt-sleeved tourists.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger backed Black's majority opinion with a statement that "all that is good is not commanded by the Constitution and all that is bad is not forbidden by it."

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, adding his concurrence, said, "This is neither the time nor the occasion to be punitive toward Jackson for her past constitutional sins of segregation."

3 Dissenting Opinions

Besides the New Nixon administration appointees, Burger and Blackmun, also in the majority were Justices John M. Harlan and Potter Stewart and Black Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall dissented. They wrote three dissenting opinions.

Marshall, a Negro, said that when Jackson officials "denied a single Negro child the opportunity to go swimming simply because he is a Negro, rights guaranteed to that child by the 14th Amendment were lost."

He added: "The fact that the color of his skin is used to prevent others from swimming in public pools is irrelevant."

Marshall III

Marshall was not in court. He was at his home in Lake Barcroft, Va., awaiting the results of tests for ulcers taken last week at the U.S. Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md.

In other actions the court:

Barred workers who were fired for not paying union dues from suing in state courts. The 5-4 ruling in an Idaho case held such disputes are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board.

—Ruled unanimously in cases from Arizona and Pennsylvania that states may not restrict welfare benefits to citizens alone or to aliens who have been residents at a set number of years.

—Decided 8 to 0 to review a Federal Communications Commission ruling that strips WHIH, Inc., of its license to operate Channel 5 in Boston and turns the station over to Boston Broadcasters Inc.

—Rejected, 8 to 1, an appeal by actor Marlon Brando to block his trial in California on charges of slandering four policemen with a description on a late-night television talk show of the slaying of a young Black Panther in Oakland.

Industrial Production Shows Sharp Increase During May

Washington (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board reported Monday industrial production showed a sharp gain in May, adding new evidence the nation's economy is picking up momentum.

The board said the key indicator of how industry is producing advanced by .07% last month, up from the moderate .03% gain in April.

It was the sharpest upward movement in industrial production since January, when it climbed by the same percentage as output of automobiles resumed after settlement of the General Motors' strike.

"It looks good," said Assistant Treasury Secretary Murray Weidenbaum, an economist. "I think it's very encouraging. It certainly confirms the recovery in the economy is under way."

Industrial production measures output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities. The index has been sluggish during most of the first half of this year, indicating the economy is not moving as fast as the Nixon administration wants.

Administration economists say, however, that the indicator is figured in such a way that it reflects more on how well industry is producing instead of how much.

The indicator, however, provides no clues on whether the economy is advancing fast enough to bring down a high rate of unemployment which was 6.2% of the work force in May.

The board said production of consumer goods and materials continued to increase last month, while output of equipment leveled off following earlier declines.

Meantime, the Commerce Department reported that manufacturing and trade firms added $710 million to their inventories in April. It was smaller than the $860 million gain indicated by revised data for March.

Most of the April increase occurred in trade, with retailers' inventories climbing by $310 million and wholesalers' inventories by $275 million.

Corn Making Good Growth; Cutworms Appear In East

By The Associated Press

The corn crop in Nebraska is beginning to make good growth, the State-Federal Bureau of Agricultural Statistics reported Monday.

The division's weekly crop report said corn cutworms were a problem in some eastern fields but said reports indicate good to excellent conditions in 75% of the fields and fair conditions in the other fields.

Both sorghum and soybean planting continue to lag behind normal, according to the report. Sorghum planting is 88% done to 94% normally while soybeans are 84% in to 91% normal.

The division said some crop damage was reported in the last week in areas receiving hail and heavy rainfall.

The wheat crop remains in good to excellent condition with the exception of some hail damage but the harvesting of the first-crop alfalfa has been slowed by wet weather.

Livestock conditions are reported generally good.

Stores, Roads Closed Briefly From Fumes

Atkinson (UPI) — An ammonia tank blew a pressure gauge shortly before noon Monday, spreading the deadly fumes over a small area of the city, but officials reported no injuries or property damage.

The State Patrol office at Atkinson said an ammonia tank on a four-wheel trailer which was being refilled from the tank caught a valve and broke it off. It was recapped shortly afterward, however, and the situation was reported under control.

The tank is situated on the outskirts of town along railroad tracks on the southeast edge.

Bankers Present $2,500 Check To NU Ag College

The Nebraska Bankers Association, Inc. has presented a $2,500 check to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture, according to Dean E. F. Frolik. The grant was approved at a recent meeting of the NU Board of Regents.

This grant, and a $2,000 grant made by the association in 1970, will be used to purchase seven electronic desk calculators for use by students in the Statistical Laboratory. These calculators, Frolik explained, will enable students to mathematically manipulate large amounts of data and will help them to master statistical techniques.

Capt Gorlinsky Loses His Life In Plane Mishap

Fairfax, S.D. (AP) — A Minnesota man was killed Sunday when the Air National Guard fighter plane he was piloting crashed near the South Dakota-Nebraska line. The victim was Capt. James R. Gorlinsky, 27, Edina, Minn. He was a member of the Iowa National Guard and also was a pilot for Northwest Airlines.

Gorlinsky, alone in the plane, was taking the F100 fighter on a training flight. The plane was based with the 185th Tactical Fighter Group at Sioux City, Iowa.

The crash occurred about two miles east of Fairfax, about one mile from the Nebraska line. A Fairfax police officer said the plane seemed to have exploded in the air. He said the wreckage still was smoldering six hours after the crash.

East Farmers Protest Missouri High Water

Omaha (AP) — Farmers who say they are losing crops because their land is under Missouri River water presented protests to the Corps of Engineers Monday.

Bill Babbitt, who organized the group consisting of about 20 farmers from the Plattsmouth and Nebraska City areas, said the engineers should release more water during the winter months when it won't hurt the crops. He said about 10,000 acres is flooded.

Elmo McClendon, chief of the Reservoir Control Center, said the engineers will take a hard look at reducing the flow of water from Gavins Point Dam if the Missouri does not go down as forecast.

He said it would be done if the farmers would accept an increase of the flow later in the summer or fall. McClendon said 50,000 cubic feet per second is pouring out of Gavins Point Dam and he expected to maintain this level through the summer in order to protect against winter flooding.

Blast Wrecks Office Building Of Spencer, Iowa, Food Plant

Spencer, Iowa (AP) — An explosion early Monday morning damaged the office building of the strikebound Spencer Food Co. plant here.

Authorities said no one was injured in the blast that blew a hole about two feet wide in the side of the brick building, just across the road from the firm's meat packing plant here.

Spencer Police Chief Don Welford and Clay County Sheriff Boyd Bussey said at least one stick of dynamite was placed near the wall of the building and detonated. The blast tore a hole through the building, bulging an interior panel and scattering debris in the offices.

The explosion at the strike-bound plant was the most serious damage that occurred since a fire was set in the firm's printing shop two weeks ago. The fire is under investigation as a possible case of arson.

In addition, there have been numerous cases of vandalism which are believed related to the strike.

Members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America union have been on strike at the Spencer plant since Jan. 17.

Workers also are on strike at Spencer Food Co. plants in Hartley, Iowa; Sioux Falls, S.D., and Schuyler, Neb.

Production has continued at the Schuyler plant with the use of supervisory personnel and newly hired employees.

Negotiating sessions with a federal mediator in Omaha, Neb., broke off last Friday afternoon after three days of preliminary discussions.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Hopes are high for the ultimate success of the new alcoholism treatment center which opens for business with its first patient today at Lincoln General Hospital. The objective of this center will be rehabilitation of the alcoholic, to return him to a normal and useful role in society.

It is not the only alcoholism program in Lincoln, to be sure, but it is a program that the city has long needed. What it seeks to do is to place the treatment of this malady in the category of a sickness, which it is, and to attempt to meet the problems of the alcoholic from a medical point of view.

Thus, it is different and more advanced than any of the other programs that exist in the city for the problems of alcoholism. From this point of view, there is no reason to believe that the program will be a duplication of anything now in existence.

With community-wide vision, there is no reason to think that there will be any duplication of services in the future. There are currently at least the other alcohol operations in the city, including the Council on Alcoholism, the Salvation Army and the new alcoholism safety program being sponsored by the city.

In addition to this is the House of Hope operations and others which are a part of various social agencies within the city. Not only is Lincoln General entering a new field for Lincoln, but it offers the future hope of a totally coordinated program.

It is not a place at the moment where the alcoholic having problems is expected to go for temporary relief or assistance. It is an operation rather geared to handle the cases of those confirmed alcoholics who want to try a complete cure and the project has been 50 per cent successful elsewhere.

Lincoln General is to be commended for its foresight in taking on this responsibility and the program will certainly be watched with a great deal of interest. Beyond that, other related matters of concern are pertinent.

Currently picking up momentum is the Mayor's Task Force on Drugs, a program that will involve a federal grant of funds for the purpose of planning and, hopefully, executing a program of drug abuse treatment and control.

This is closely related to alcoholism and all groups and agencies who deal with alcoholism because many of the same personal and psychological problems are involved. Possibly, the drug problem is even worse than the alcohol problem but there seems to be a great potential for the handling of both of them in much the same manner.

At the moment, it is believed that Lincoln does not have a serious drug problem but that is only a relative thing. Our problem is not serious in comparison with New York City, San Francisco and Los Angeles, for instance, but we do have individuals with whom drugs are a problem.

Additionally, it is believed that the drug problem in Lincoln will be accentuated as time goes by. We could, by 1972, have a drug problem of serious proportions.

By planning now for treatment of this problem, we might be able to reduce the volume of our problem and be ready to handle what difficulties do develop. Like alcoholism, drug addiction takes a human and community toll that should not and cannot be tolerated.

Also coming into the picture at this time is more and more attention focused on the subject of the aging. Here again, another federal grant will be subsidizing a city program of planning in the area of health care and other needs of the older members of our society.

This is not quite in the same category of alcoholism and drugs but it is similar in that it represents a concern that has long been with us but that has received too little attention. Additionally, it is a concern that seems to be growing in intensity.

In all these areas, the Lincoln General program might serve as somewhat of a catalyst as at least an example of an effective avenue of approach to difficult human problems. Our social conscience has certainly been touched and we are on the threshold of doing something about it.

Search Carried On For Typical Family

NEW YORK — Somebody has just mailed me an application to compete for the nation's All-American Family, the one that best typifies the American way of life. I have only two weeks left to get in under the deadline.

The contest people are right in hurrying along their search. Because, if you can believe the experts, the "typical American family" is on the way out. Mama Bear, Papa Bear and Baby Bear are scattering from the family hearth in all directions.

What the judges are looking for, of course, is a normal, law-abiding, apple-pie family, with healthy, scrubbed kids and parents who are working hard to bring them up with moral and spiritual standards.

They'll find one, too. There are (praise be) still families like that around. But they're not as "typical" as they used to be.

Maybe the word the judges should have used is "ideal." Because the American way of life these days isn't always something you want to hand out prizes for.

Too many families find themselves struggling with their offspring over the "typical" problems of drugs, drink evasion, protest, anti-war demonstrations, sexual freedom, freaky getups and ideas to match.

It might not be easy to find a family of children who will admit to a reverent regard for our good, old "American way" of scrambling for bigger mortgages and fatter pension plans and two cars in every garage.

It might, before long, be even harder to find families that even believe in that one thing our upright generation always thought every good family should have: a marriage certificate.

Coming To Terms

The second battle for Okinawa, one which for a time threatened the existence of the government of Japanese Prime Minister Sato, appears to be about finished. Some 27 years after the bloody World War II fighting in which the U.S. won control of the Ryukyu Islands chain.

This Thursday, an agreement will be announced simultaneously in Tokyo and Washington returning Okinawa and the other Ryukyu Islands to Japan in 1972. The reversion agreement originally was scheduled to be signed in April, but negotiations were repeatedly stalemated and the target date for initialing the agreement was shifted ahead time and again until the final details were worked out last week.

The Japanese people are understandably touchy about the status of nuclear weapons and U.S. military bases on Okinawa and public pressure has forced Sato to take a hard line on those issues. Also holding up the agreement were questions involving Voice of America transmitters, the status of foreign business enterprises and compensation for losses suffered by Okinawan residents.

A spokesman present at the final meeting between Japanese and American diplomats said "all questions were settled" and confirmed that the accord provides for a Japanese veto power over the launching of U.S. combat troops from Okinawan territory, that all nuclear weapons will be removed from the island, that the Naha airport will be converted into a completely civilian operation and that Japan will pay an estimated $320 million for bases given up by the United States.

Restrictions on the military use of Okinawa by the U.S. would have made things difficult in the past, but if the U.S. pursues the Nixon policy of taking a less active role in the Pacific, the restrictions can be lived with. And coming to terms on emotional issues important to the Japanese people and native Okinawans can only improve relations between Japan and the U.S.

Taxation By Plebiscite

One can find little fault with Democratic party interest in promoting the program of removing the sales tax on food. The idea is a part of the platform of Democratic Gov. J. James Exon and, therefore, a logical matter of interest on the part of that party.

What concerns us is the approach through a petition drive to amend the state constitution. This is the means being considered by the party to achieve the tax removal, due to the fact that the Legislature refused to adopt the proposed change.

The effort would run into a state statute or referendum procedures. Party spokesmen say that the statute is probably unconstitutional and will be changed, if need be, by the petition campaign for removal of the sales tax on food.

What all this means is that we would revert to a system whereby our tax base could be changed through the initiative or referendum procedure. If such is a correct interpretation of the constitution, then we would have to say that the constitutional provision should prevail but we would think it to be flirting with danger.

In the past, the state of Nebraska has for a brief period, found itself in the unique position of having no taxing authority, at all. This happened because various interest groups brought first one and then another taxing authority to a vote of the people and the people turned down all systems.

We were left with nothing, at all, a situation ultimately corrected by the Legislature but a situation that could prevail again, if, legally or otherwise, it is determined that the initiative and referendum should be permitted for determining the tax system, then we hope that at least the electorate and those who would seek to utilize those tools, would display a greater sense of responsibility than has prevailed in the past.

East Pakistan Refugees Crossing Into India; Instinct To Help Is Complicated By Politics

LONDON—Imagine the entire population of New Jersey, seven million people, fleeing the state and taking refuge in New York City and the counties nearby. That thought gives some idea of the dimensions of what is happening now in East Pakistan—except that the refugees are much poorer and the area of India into which they are fleeing infinitely more desperate than New York.

British sources estimate that between four and five million East Pakistanis have crossed into India, and that 100,000 more are leaving every day. Before long the total could be seven or eight million.

The refugees are in a country that already has difficulty feeding itself, one afflicted by overpopulation and unemployment. There are no jobs for the refugees, and no farm land. They are starting to filter into Calcutta, a city where one million people regularly sleep on the pavement and millions more have no running water or sewage systems.

All this can be seen in the headlines and on the television screens, but do European and American audiences really absorb it? Or are the numbers so large that we tend to see it as a catastrophe of nature, what is really something made by man?

Public opinion in the West has certainly been slow to react: only now is one beginning to feel a sense of urgency in the calls for action from relief agencies and charities. Yet the root elements in the tragedy, the death and destruction in East Pakistan have been known for many weeks.

Civil and communal war has killed many thousands of civilians. No one will ever know exactly how many, but some observers have put the figure as high as several hundred thousand.

People have killed each other because of animosities of race, politics and religion; no community is entirely free of guilt. But the principal agent of death and hatred has been the Pakistan army. And its killing has been selective: According to reliable reports from inside East Pakistan, the army's particular targets have been intellectuals and leaders of opinion—doctors, professors, students, writers.

The economy of East Pakistan has been hard hit. The planting cycle for food grains is disturbed. The transportation system, already badly hurt by the flood disaster last fall, has been crippled. Many boats are sunk. The main railway line will take six months to repair, assuming uninterrupted peace.

The human and economic dislocation now threatens to lead to a terrible famine. The Financial Times of London, which is not given to exaggeration, has published an estimate that up to four million people in East Pakistan may die in the coming months unless emergency relief and reconstruction measures are undertaken.

What can Western countries do to help East Pakistan out of this disaster? As has so often been the case, notoriously in the Nigerian civil war, humanitarian instincts are complicated by politics.

Western governments must naturally want to give assistance in a politically helpful way—one that will hopefully calm the hatreds in East Pakistan, restore the society, open the way for refugees to return. But that surely means an external presence in the area, the handling of relief by someone other than the Pakistan army—a program not likely to please President Yahya Khan.

The United States and other concerned countries have not put pressure on Yahya Khan publicly. But there are indications that they have been privately using their leverage as his main sources of central economic aid. Reports suggest that Yahya Khan will accept some kind of United Nations presence in East Pakistan.

No Conscience

Lincoln, Neb.
It's terrible the way some people disrespect our loved ones' memorial decorations in Lincoln Memorial Park Cemetery.

It happened again this year. My cousin passed away suddenly in October of last year and that was quite a shock to his wife. Then when she placed an expensive decoration on his grave, she found it had been taken, so there was still another shock.

I can't see how anyone can stoop so low as to do such a thing as that. People who steal from the deceased would certainly steal from the living and I also wonder if this person or persons have a clear conscience. They could not possibly have.

Kerry Interview

Lincoln, Neb.
I was thoroughly disgusted after reading the interview with Bob Kerry! I, too, would like to see a prompt end to the war, and agree with some of his statements; however, anyone going into a war situation and expecting anything less than hell is totally unrealistic.

U.S. citizens have proven we don't need a war to commit such atrocities as occur in a war. The "war" being waged on our highways is appalling—we kill and maim so many thousands! Also, the killing and horrible murders committed in this country cannot be overlooked. How about our police forces, safety patrol, fire departments, etc. who are completely unheralded, unrewarded, unsuspected, etc. who for some reason are motivated to make a career of such a force? They face sickening crimes and situations daily, sometimes for a lifetime.

I would imagine since I am at age 39 classified as part of the adult community, Bob was pointing at me also for just sitting back, paying taxes and feeling that was enough. I'll take my share of the blame. However, he has failed to consider that those older than we were once young, too. Many of them already have done their "bit" for their country. I would agree that they could be more active and more vocal regarding our government. I do think we can make this system work but it is going to take a lot more than just ending a war.

Why did Bob accept the Medal of Honor, anyway? I assume he could not turn down the chance for fame and recognition. But to use his heroism and that of the men who died beside him really appeals me! However, it is his right as a citizen of the United States of America to do this.

Institution Visit

Fairbury, Neb.
I read an article about the new director of institutions visiting some of the state institutions.

Although I am just visiting here in Nebraska, I worked in one of the state institutions not too long ago. Things must have improved greatly in that short time, as the new director found everything "fine."

I wonder how much time he spent at each of the institutions. I wonder whom he talked to there. My guess would be that it was none of the ward aides or people who do the hard labor in the wards. These would be the ones to know about patient needs, not the ones sitting in the air-conditioned offices.

He said it took a lot of time at each institution, listening to the problems and programs. I would say it would take a week with eight hours each day actually to get to the bottom of all the problems and try to solve a few of them.

I wonder what he meant when he said the people at the institutions have done well with what they have received. Did he mean that not enough money was appropriated? I would not go along with this. I would say the money is not used in the proper place. Perhaps too many people take trips all over the country at the taxpayers' expense. But when it comes to employing more ward aides, there is never enough money for that.

I found that the wards for the severely retarded were always the ones short of employees. The new director should take a close look at each of the wards from the top floor to the bottom and see for himself.

Money does not always cure all ills, but spending it in the right places sometimes helps.

EX-STATE EMPLOYEE

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This may be a delicate question because it involves a religious ceremony, but in answering scientifically, is it dangerous for a group of people (I mean about 400) to drink from the same cup, passing it from one to another and wiping the spot they drink from with the same cloth napkin? I worry about hepatitis, tuberculosis, etc. Most of the people seemingly do not worry about this, and the ones who do are hesitant to pass the cup by, for fear of looking "different." This ceremony occurs several times a year at school, and as a mother of one of the participants I would like to have it cancelled because I feel it isn't healthy. Perhaps I am wrong, but if I'm right, I need some basis for stating my feelings to school officials. Can you contract hepatitis, TB, etc. this way? Does a private school have to follow public health regulations? —K.C.

Well, yes, it is a touchy topic, but I'll give you the best answer I can.

True, it is possible to transmit hepatitis, tuberculosis, or other infections in such manner — provided, of course, someone in the group has such a disease. Religion doesn't provide total immunity from the laws of nature, as witness occasional outbreaks of food poisoning at church suppers, or in school cafeterias, or picnics.

But if you ask me for specific examples of disease being spread by use of a common cup, I don't know that I can do so. That would be difficult to prove unless it happened to be a disease that developed rapidly, and among a considerable number of participants.

I've asked public health officials, and they tell me, yes, regulations apply to private schools just as they apply to anybody, but it is a ticklish and touchy matter unless a definite danger can be cited. There is a potential danger in a common cup, but it is not easy to specify how much danger exists. So it's a situation that is, for the most part, allowed, like a sleeping dog, to lie.

I can recall, years ago, talking to some of the old-timers in public health work, and hearing them tell of their experiences. In the early 1900s, when people still drew water from neighborhood wells or pumps and couldn't see any reason why they should switch to city water supplies.

Such wells were known to have spread typhoid and other diseases, but many people could not be made to accept the fact.

So public health officials very quietly went around at night and tossed some bitter stuff into the wells to make the water too unpleasant to drink. After sweet reason failed, that worked.

I am not, of course, suggesting any such methods now, but some unhygienic habits linger on just through custom rather than reason.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 and my fiancé is 24. We are in such manner — provided, of course, someone in the group has such a disease. Religion doesn't provide total immunity from the laws of nature, as witness occasional outbreaks of food poisoning at church suppers, or in school cafeterias, or picnics.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 and my fiancé is 24. We are fifth cousins. Do you think this is far enough off for marriage? He had mumps when he was 6. Can this cause sterility? Please answer as we are very worried. —A.W.

Yes, it is a fifth cousin, far enough removed. Mumps CAN cause sterility, but that is usually because the person is older when he gets the disease, very rarely at age 6. You're probably worrying for nothing. A sperm test can be done to determine his status.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please print this because it bothers me. My sister-in-law puts sun glasses on her six-month-old baby, and I wonder if this does anything to her eyes. —N.W.

No.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are "food supplements" necessary in one's daily diet if one eats well-balanced meals? My friendship with someone has almost come to an end because she insists this is vitally important to one's health. Of course, she sells these products and thinks she is an authority on the subject. Also, is it necessary to have vitamins daily? —Mrs. D.A.R.

A well-balanced diet gives any healthy person all the vitamins and minerals (or other "food supplements") he needs. In the interests of being friendly, all I can suggest is that you stop discussing the topic entirely with your friend.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will two or three dry martinis on the rocks daily make an arthritis condition worse or cause more stiffness and pain? —Mrs. M.S.

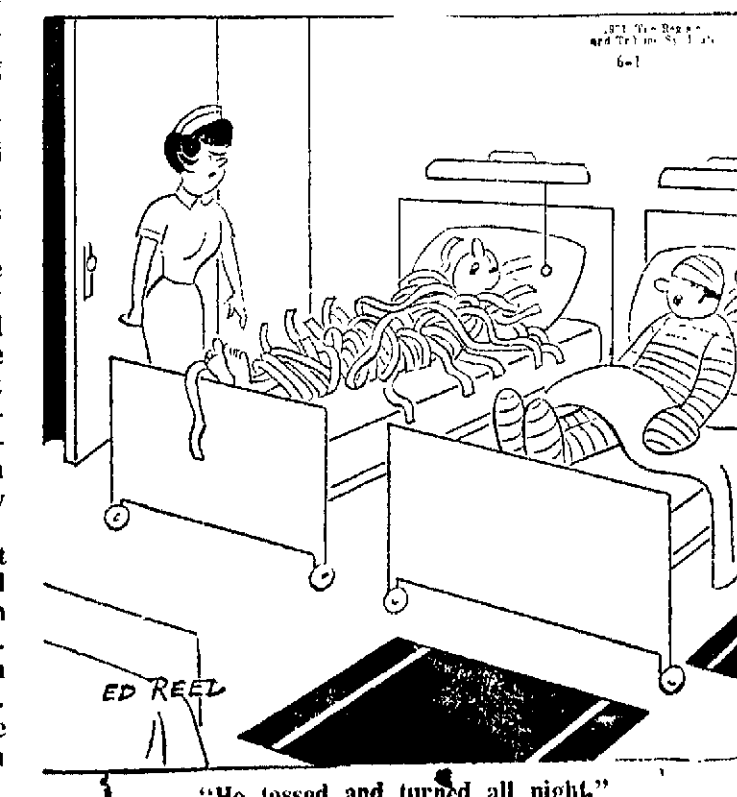

About the only effect is that a moderate amount of alcohol, with its sedative effect, may relax you and give you a certain amount of temporary relief.

Dr. Thosteson is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses them in his column. But because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Some Hard Up At Tax Time, Write Bad Checks

By United Press International
Some Nebraskans are "just hard up" when it comes time to pay their taxes, a State Revenue Department official says, and they write bad checks.

"I don't really think there is any criminal intent involved," said George Backe, head of the department's sales tax division.

"I think people are just hard up," he said.

Last year an average of 76 taxpayers a month wrote bad checks to pay various state taxes, and so far this year the monthly average is 106, Backe reported.

He noted that at the end of calendar year 1970 some 171 checks were still outstanding, leaving the state short some $22,979.

Still Bouncing
The year before, there were 129 checks still bouncing around at the end of the year, leaving the state with $38,663 on the books but not in the treasury.

"A very few" bad checks result from the sender's failure to sign them, Backe said. He added these are sent back "immediately" and are usually taken care of.

And for the others, he said, the department tries to "bend over" as much as possible.

However, after a certain point the department adopts a "very tough attitude" towards the bad check writers and does not hesitate to impose penalties Backe said.

In attempts to head off bad checks, he said the department has tried to show the people how serious the matter is because they are not "actually taxpayers but tax collectors" of taxes other than income.

"We try to get across to them that if they spend this money, they're spending money that isn't theirs," Backe said. "They've just collected it from others and are holding it in trust for the state."

But that approach hasn't appeared to cut down much on the number of rubber checks received, he said.

In order to give the person every opportunity to avoid serious penalties, the Revenue Department spokesman said, when a check comes back it is sent through again.

If it comes back a second time, however, it is turned over to one of the department's 24 field men.

"The field man clear up most of the cases," Backe said. "But if he is unsuccessful they are turned over to the legal division."

Authorized Penalty
And along with that goes the penalty authorized by law, he said.

The penalty is a fine of $25 or the collector's fee for handling the state's share of money received from customers, whichever is greater.

If still uncollectable, the matter could result in a lien being filed against the person's property, which could ultimately result in a tax sale.

However, Backe reported a sale is a "last resort" measure and is not commonly used. Usually, he said, the person finds some way to pay before the sale is held.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Mates Hard To Find After 40

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: — "For every single man I know past 40, there are a dozen widows, divorcees and spinsters. Maybe one will snag him but what about the rest of us? I am a widow 66 and don't mind admitting I've been looking for a husband five years. Social Security is fine but what about marital security? Is society doing anything to steer older people toward suitable mates?"

Answer: — Sounds like you not only expect a chicken in every pot but a man for every woman. Romance is still in the find-it-yourself category and neither Uncle Sam nor society can do a great deal other than provide an atmosphere of encouragement. Active participation in community activities, clubs, and church groups offers the best route to possible romantic alliances. Available men are in very short supply and older women should be realistic about their chances.

They should build lives which are largely independent, rich in purpose, and buttressed with emotional warmth derived from good friends and kind neighbors. They should keep an open mind toward romance, but should never feel all is lost if they end up sharing their home with an affectionate dog or cat.

Question: — "We didn't marry until our 40s and now have two small children. Many friends our age are grandparents already and it sometimes scares us to realize that we'll be 60 when our children graduate from high school. Do you think our children will miss a great deal having such elderly parents?"

Answer: — I don't think age has anything to do with it. My Dad was 45 when I was born and he couldn't have been a better father. And I've known several people who were raised by their grandparents and have nothing but praise for their rearing. Middle-aged parents may not be able to turn cartwheels with youngsters, but they can still provide the essential elements for successful parenthood—a devoted and affectionate interest. I wouldn't be surprised if this element is found more often among mature parents than among those who run off, marry, and start breeding the minute they get out of rompers.

"I met with Napper Tandy, and he took me by the hand, saying, 'How is poor old Ireland?'"

"And what way does she stand?"

The twisty Irish road was full of hitchhikers. Thumbs asking for rides to the soft, green south. It was the long weekend.

The weather is an Irish dream: The mornings start with clouds to make you unpack the umbrella. By noon it turns sunny. The sky is washed blue. The field now are full of buttercups and clumps of golden gorse.

The white thorn is in snowy bloom.

"It's a soft day," they say here. When the Atlantic storms batter the coasts, they say: "It's a desperate day."

We flew in on a sentimental journey: The great duty-free stores of Shannon Airport are 25 years old, and they opened a grand new mail order building. Ribbon cutting. Speeches by ministers of the government. Responses in Gaelic.

A lot of drinking of Irish whiskey — for it was the Irish who invented "the water of life."

Everybody got a little smashed. It was that kind of day.

The duty-free shops are as big as Macy's these prosperous days — the mail order catalogue business from Shannon is worth $3 million a year alone.

The planes stop for fuel. And the jumbo jetload of passengers have 45 minutes to buy everything from all over the world at no tax, no duty prices.

"Who'd have believed it?" said to Brendan O'Regan.

I flew into Shannon 20 years ago on a chill January morning. One engine feathered — few planes made the Atlantic and kept all four engines going.

"Two turning and two burning."

This was a TWA Constellation — a first flight. On the ground at Shannon was PanAm's luxury President flight. It was grounded at Shannon so often they called it "The Resident President."

We all got off and went inside for our first Irish coffee. There were six stools. The beginning of the duty-free stores was a case of Petersen's pipes. Maybe a dozen.

We bought all of them.

Brendan O'Regan owned The Old Ground Hotel in nearby Ennis. They catered the airport. While we waited for the ribbon to be cut, he showed me a piece of corrugated roof. "That's the last of the old buildings," he said.

The Shannon development runs restaurants and duty-free shopping. They run schools and hotels and apartment houses at the airport. They have more than two dozen foreign factories. Assembling parts for shipment. Employing thousands of Irish workmen.

The agricultural west of Ireland is breathing new life.

We drank the Irish coffee: Black and hot. Laced with Irish whiskey. Topped with an inch of Irish cream.

Joe Sheridan, the chef, invented it. A restoring drink for people who'd flown the black night Atlantic. Looking down at the water full of milky ice and, through the porthole, watching the ailing prop windmill to a full stop.

Days of glory, glory be!

There were temporary barracks for people when the planes limped in like that. The rooms were unheated. The sheets were cold as a well digger's memories.

I held my breath and jumped in bed. Ouch! New to us. The Irish put a stone bottle full of boiling water at the foot. It just about burned my feet off.

After awhile I got warmed up. At the foot. At the top I had an Irish coffee. Ice cold in between. All up and down the hall you could hear fellow passengers scream when they jumped in and hit the hot bottle.

Lincoln Teacher Hopes Third Powder Puff Try Successful

By WAYNE KREUSCHER
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln school teacher and aviation enthusiast Miss Evelyn Sedivy may prove "the third time is the charm" in this year's Powder Puff Derby air race.

Pilot Miss Sedivy, who will be accompanied by navigator Mrs. Frank (Vera) Bartunek, will compete for the third year in the All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race which begins July 5 in Calgary, Alta., Canada.

The 25th annual race, which is expected to attract 148 entrants, will end at Baton Rouge, La. Contestants, who will fly only during daylight hours, must complete the 4,224-mile course by sundown July 8.

Highest Average
The airplane which records the highest average speed over its predetermined par speed will win the first prize of $10,000.

King's Food Host USA will sponsor Miss Sedivy and Mrs. Bartunek in a single-engine Piper Cherokee Arrow which has a par speed of 150 miles per hour.

Miss Sedivy, a second grade teacher at Belmont School, was a contestant in the 1962 and 1969 races. She has been flying for ten years and has her commercial license and 600 flying hours.

First Time
This will be Mrs. Bartunek's first time in the race. A Lincoln housewife and a grandmother, she started flying in 1965 and has her commercial, instrument and multi-engine licenses. She has 450 flying hours.

Miss Sedivy said "just the experience of going before, of knowing what to expect and how the race is handled" should help her this year in the "keenly competitive" race.

She noted they are planning no definite strategy for the race, but that it is important to judge the weather and wind correctly to know how to handle the plane well and to stay on course.

"Being three or four miles off course can become a big matter," Miss Sedivy explained. "The first place winner usually wins by only a few seconds."

Also participating in the race, which includes a "must" stop in Lincoln, will be Lincoln pilot Mrs. Robert L. Heins. Mrs. Heins, who will fly solo, has taken part in at least one other Powder Puff Derby race.

"Must" stops are cities where every plane must stop before continuing on in the race. Besides Lincoln, all planes will have to stop at Rapid City, S.D., Little Rock Ark., and at either Great Falls, Mont., or Billings, Mont., for customs.

Other Airports
Other airports on the designated route where planes can stop if they choose include Denver, McCook and St. Louis, Mo.

In addition to the first prize, prizes also are offered for speeds attained between various stops along the air race route. A $500 prize will be awarded to the plane which makes the best time between stops at McCook and Lincoln.

One traditional policy of this race is that pilots and co-pilots do not wear slacks or shorts. Mrs. Sedivy noted that the pilots "are proud to be women" and most will wear skirts or collotes

Retirement Law Urged

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, who turned 55 on June 6, proposed a constitutional amendment that would set a mandatory retirement age of 72 for all members of congressmen and federal judges. "Unfortunately, old age does not bring with it increased capacity for work," he said.

Damages Sought In 2-Car Mishap

A $25,393.44 suit was filed in Lancaster District Court Monday by Patty L. Shorney in connection with a two-car collision Aug. 9, 1969, at 26th and A.

The plaintiff alleges that the defendant, Cynthia A. Cherry, was negligent in that she failed to maintain proper lookout, failed to yield the right of way, failed to keep her vehicle under proper control and failed to stop for a stop sign.

As a result of the collision, the plaintiff alleges she suffered a broken tooth, aggravation of a pre-existing fracture, a lumbrosacral sprain, neck and shoulder injuries and headaches.

Amendment Ratified

Jefferson City, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri became the 33rd state to ratify the U.S. Constitutional Amendment to lower the voting age to 18. A total of 34 states must approve the amendment for it to become law.

Morton Buildings Of Nebraska Sues Parent Company For $2.25 Million

A $2,250,000 suit was filed in U.S. District Court Monday by Morton Buildings of Nebraska against Morton Buildings, Inc. charging the defendants with violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust and Clayton Acts.

The plaintiff firm, according to the petition, is engaged in the business of selling at retail and erecting a type of wood frame metal-covered building primarily used in farm operations and occasionally in commercial operations.

The plaintiff firm contends that it is a dealer and retailer of Morton Buildings Inc. obtaining orders for sale and erection of buildings and purchasing them at wholesale from the defendant Morton Building, Inc.

According to the petition, through the ability, experience and promotional efforts exerted by Earl West who founded the Nebraska-based firm in 1960, the sale of Morton buildings increased rapidly to the extent that $750,000 worth were sold in 1970.

The plaintiff contends that it was anticipated that in excess of $1,000,000 worth would be sold in 1971.

However, according to the suit in Feb. 1971 Morton notified the plaintiff that the defendant would take over completely plaintiff's bookkeeping including the issuance of checks of plaintiff's checking accounts and would provide direct supervision of the plaintiff's operations.

The plaintiff contends that this was done even though the plaintiff had a "completely adequate and satisfactory bookkeeping and accounting system" in operation.

According to the petition, the defendant had never expressed dissatisfaction or shortcomings with plaintiff's existing bookkeeping and accounting system. However, taking over the bookkeeping constituted a device whereby Morton was able to obtain knowledge of detailed operations of the plaintiff's business and to facilitate a complete takeover by the defendant.

On April 23, 1971, Morton notified the Nebraska Morton firm's president that effective May 1, 1971, the defendant was taking over the plaintiff's business including outstanding contracts business records, accounts receivables sale leads, and that it would complete all outstanding contracts for the erection of buildings sold by the plaintiff up to that time the petition states.

However the plaintiff contends that the defendant further stated that all costs including labor would be charged back to the plaintiff and that Morton would hold plaintiff liable for any losses incurred by Morton even though the plaintiff was not allowed any supervisory authority over erection of buildings or repairs to them if they should be improperly erected.

The plaintiff firm charges that the defendant forced plaintiff's officers to given in to Morton's demands through threats of wholly groundless and frivolous lawsuits and that the defendant representatives conspired with plaintiff's salesmen to take over plaintiff's business and eliminate the plaintiff as competition for the sale and construction of Morton homes in Nebraska.

According to the petition, Morton intentionally took away and deprived plaintiff and converted to its own use all of plaintiff's business and goodwill and sought to embarrass the plaintiff financially and destroy its reputation so that neither plaintiff nor its officers could effectively compete with the defendant.

On April 23, 1971, Morton notified the Nebraska Morton firm's president that effective May 1, 1971, the defendant was taking over the plaintiff's business including outstanding contracts business records, accounts receivables sale leads, and that it would complete all outstanding contracts for the erection of buildings sold by the plaintiff up to that time the petition states.

However the plaintiff contends that the defendant further stated that all costs including labor would be charged back to the plaintiff and that Morton would hold plaintiff liable for any losses incurred by Morton even though the plaintiff was not allowed any supervisory authority

FRANK SHARP

Frank Sharp Gets 3-Year Probation

Houston, Tex. (AP) — Frank Sharp, whose bank loan and stock deals shook the highest echelons of Texas government, this year walked free from a federal courtroom Monday on his promise to behave for three years.

Sharp had pleaded guilty.

U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton placed the promoter and ex-banker on three years' probation and fined him $5,000 on charges of making false entries in his now-defunct Sharpstown State Bank and of selling unregistered stocks.

The scandals were set off when the Securities and Exchange Commission filed a civil suit against 13 companies and 15 individuals seeking an injunction to stop them from any fraud and stock manipulation.

Sharp could have been assessed a total of 10 years in prison and fined $10,000, or both.

Youth Injured In Car Crash Sues Driver

A $79,333.10 was filed in Lancaster District Court Monday by an 18-year-old Nance County youth in connection with a one-car accident Nov. 19, 1970.

Francis Wozniak alleges in his action against John F. Smith that he was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Smith when it went out of control and struck a light pole after the defendant turned off Cornhusker onto the southbound ramp to Interstate 180.

The plaintiff alleges negligence on the part of the defendant whom he claims was driving while under the influence of alcoholic liquor and was traveling at an excessive rate of speed when the mishap occurred.

As a result of the accident, the plaintiff alleges he received multiple injuries including a fractured left femur, a foot injury requiring the amputation of all toes on one foot, bruises and abrasions.

Rules To Enforce Abandoned Vehicle Law To Be Ready

By United Press International
State Motor Vehicles Director John Kissack said Monday rules and regulations for enforcing Nebraska's new abandoned vehicle law may be ready by the end of the week.

of the red tape involved in getting rid of junkers. William Edwards of the department said the law was requested primarily by the municipalities, who have the "greatest" problem with abandoned vehicles.

vehicles than did the old law covering abandoned property. Kissack said, and is the first to deal specifically with junkers. A number of conferences on the proposed rules and regulations have already been held and another is scheduled for Tuesday, the director said. He added it would be attended by representatives from Lincoln and Omaha.

Following the conference, the rules and regulations for enforcement would be put into final form, Kissack said.

trying to locate the legal owner before the vehicle can be sold.

simplified procedures under the new law, there would probably be more enforcement.

Simple Majority To OK Bonds Favored

Gov J James Exon supports retention of newly enacted legislation which reduces to a simple majority the affirmative vote required to approve local bond issues.

communities want to issue bonds or levy taxes beyond a specified state constitutional limit. That ruling raises speculation that some senators will attempt to repeal the new law, returning to a system where majorities of 55% and 60% are required to approve valid local bond issues.

"As a long and active supporter of the one-man, one-vote principle, I'm glad the Legislature passed the new law," the governor said. "I believe a simple majority should prevail."

Under the terms of the law, if a vehicle is determined to be worth $100 or less, title automatically goes to the governmental subdivision involved.

3 Women File As Demo Delegate Candidates Pledged To Kennedy

Three women filed as candidates Monday in the Democratic National Convention delegate race, pledging support for Sen. Edward Kennedy as the party's presidential nominee.

The three included Mrs. Eda Jo Van Neste and Mrs. Jan Healey, both of Lincoln, and Mrs. Irene Bystrom of North Platte.

In a statement, the three said by filing "this early we hope to better communicate our deep concern over the issues facing the nation. They listed major issues as the Vietnam war and the economy.

And they said Kennedy, D-Mass., "is the one candidate that can beat the Republican nominee in 1972."

All three women worked on the Philip C. Sorensen campaign. Mrs. Van Neste served as co-chairman for John Kennedy in 1960, and out-state chairman for Robert F. Kennedy in 1968.

Mrs. Bystrom served as co-chairman for Women for John Kennedy in 1960 and state coordinator for Robert Kennedy in 1968. She is also presently serving on the party's State Central Committee.

Mrs. Healey was a delegate to the 1968 Democratic National Convention. She also served as out-state treasurer and as Lancaster County co-chairman with her husband in Robert Kennedy's 1968 campaign.

Big-Heart Robbers

Yokosuka, Japan (AP) — A masked robber burst in on a young couple at an inn, but when he found they had only about $3 he left part of it behind, police said. The robber then stole $43 from the room next door, gave part of it to the young couple and fled.

Exon Criticizes 'Complacency' In Agriculture

Gov. J. J. Exon Monday said "agricultural complacency" is "an economic tragedy," which is "plaguing our country and Nebraska."

"We must recognize that nationally, agriculture is not on the priority list," Exon said. "Washington has demonstrated a pitiful ignorance of food and fiber problems."

"It is evidenced by the apparent disregard and lack of knowledge that our nation has for the annual multi-million dollar loss being experienced by our economy from an under-priced agriculture."

Exon had also voiced his concern over what he called "agricultural complacency" when he spoke last Friday to the Nebraska Stockgrowers Association in Grand Island.

The governor said that attempting to entice industry into Nebraska was like "stepping over diamonds on our way to the mine" and pledged that his administration would also aid agriculture.

He also called attention to the fact that the average Nebraska farmer is 58 years old and said more effort should be made to encourage young persons to enter the field.

State Highway Construction Is Delayed By High Water

State Engineer Thomas Doyle reported Monday high water in the North and South Platte Rivers is holding up construction on at least one highway project.

He said the primary cause of the delay is producers along the Platte Rivers are unable to supply gravel because of the high water. The two rivers supply most gravel needs.

"We're concerned at the delay, but there's not much we can do but wait for the waters to recede for gravel producers to resume work," the engineer said.

Specifically, the $1 million plus job on Nebraska Highway 2, north of Crawford, would be delayed for an indefinite period of time.

The 28.4-mile project was scheduled to begin Monday, Doyle said.

Farmer Executes Cash-Eating Goat

Caracas, Venezuela (UPI) — An irate Venezuelan farmer Monday personally "executed" his pet goat after the animal ate the equivalent of $1,660 in bills he was saving in a wicker basket.

Police said the farmer, Jose Asuncion, who lives in Cumana, 280 miles east of Caracas hacked the goat to death with a machete.

Council Requests Police Report On Royal Grove

The City Council Monday asked the police department to furnish it with a five-year summary of complaints and police actions involving the Royal Grove.

Councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis specifically brought up the request so that the council could have this information before deciding whether to hold a public hearing to revoke the go-go club's liquor license.

Robert Marhenke, of 225 West Saunders, had appeared before the council with a petition signed by 33 residents living in the vicinity of the Royal Grove asking for a revocation of the license.

'Public Nuisance'

Marhenke said the people contend the Royal Grove is a public nuisance and requests that the place be closed under

Youths Not In Auto; Girl Not Detained

David Roy Hanneman, 19, of 1527 Sioux, and David D. Crisp, 20, of 815 Judson, lined June 10 in Lancaster County Court on the misdemeanor charge of indecent exposure, were not in a car with a 13-year-old girl who was clothed in a swimming suit.

Nor did Hanneman and Crisp detain this girl in a car as incorrectly originally reported to and by the police in connection with a recent Belmont swimming pool episode all as reported in The Lincoln Star on June 5 and 11.

Nor was Allen Charles Barber, 17, the youth in the car with the girl and the individual fined $20 on a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace, in the car in a nude condition.

Lancaster Dep. Co. Atty. Ronald Lahners volunteered this information to correct earlier reported police accounts incorrectly containing such allegations following a second interview with the girl involved.

Lahners said that four youths had gone for a late night nude swim in the Belmont swimming pool, but that the girl has now said she voluntarily got in the car with Barber who was clothed at the time. According to Lahners, Hanneman and Crisp later approached the car in the nude, but could have been unaware that there was a girl present in the car at that time.

Film Depicting Earthquake Toll Drawing Crowds

San Francisco (AP) — The City That Wants to Die, a film that suggests up to 100,000 persons could die in this city's next major earthquake, is drawing heavy crowds to four times a day showings in the backroom of a North Beach restaurant.

Its sponsors claim attempts were made to suppress the film.

Alvin Duskin, a wealthy garment manufacturer who is heading a drive to ban new skyscrapers from San Francisco, purchased the British Broadcasting Corp. film for $600 on condition it be shown free.

Newspaper critics call the film's two-week run the hottest underground movie in town.

The film suggests that San Francisco could be leveled in the next 26 years by a devastating earthquake that could kill between 50,000 to 100,000 persons.

Rule 17 of the state liquor laws which states an establishment can be closed if declared to be a public nuisance.

The area resident said 80% of the persons he contacted were willing to sign a statement that they felt the place to be a public nuisance.

The petition to the council contends that the crowds at the night club are noisy and often wake residents, the manager does not police the parking lot, patrons litter the neighborhood and drive on nearby lawns and that the place has a history of fist fights, knife fights, nude dancing and sales to minors.

'A Disgrace'

"The place is a disgrace and a detriment to our neighborhood," the petition states.

Marhenke said the petition drive was brought to a head by a plan of Spa, Inc., which does business as The Royal Grove, to expand the premises by one-third its present size.

In another matter, a proposed ordinance to allow on and off-sale beer to be sold on July 4 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on-sale drinks from 6-10 p.m. attracted no backers and two opponents at a public hearing.

The ordinance had been requested by John Boosalis, who operates The Knolls Restaurant.

Marhenke was one of the two opponents, who said he feels he should have one day or rest living next to a tavern.

First Step

Art Johnson said he also opposes the ordinance and regards it as the first step to get liquor allowed every Sunday.

The council decided to place on pending a special permit to allow Eastmont Christian Retirement Homes to build a five-story 87-unit retirement residence on property south of O St between 63rd and 66th.

Council members agreed to postpone action for at least a week in hope that the architects could provide additional landscaping and possibly face the building in a different direction.

Councilman Steve Cook, an architect, had made the request following comments by Mrs. Boosalis that she objected to the building because of its resembling "a solid wall" to neighborhood residents.

Councilmen Merle Hale, Bob Skyta and Pete Peterson voice support for the special permit.

People More Important

Peterson said in reply to Mrs. Boosalis' comments about esthetics that it is more important to provide additional housing for the elderly.

"It's not necessary to smell a rose every day to live in a house," he remarked in saying the needs of the people should be given top consideration.

Mrs. Boosalis said she is just as much interested in the people, including those who live in the area.

The council also set June 28 for hearing a request by Rooftop Inc. for a liquor license on the fourth floor of the Hovland-Swanson store in the downtown area.

Carolyn Chapin Is Evening Bride

Acacia greenery and daisies, roses, statice and gypsophelia, all in yellow shades, appointed the chancel of the Westminster Presbyterian Church for the wedding of Miss Carolyn Leonard Chapin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. Robert Ross and Howard A. Chapin of Cheyenne, Wyo., and John Curtis Hoelscher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred F. Hoelscher of St. Louis, Mo., which took place on Saturday evening, June 12. The Rev. William Van Auker solemnized the 5 o'clock ceremony and the wedding music was played by Bruce Bengston.

Identically styled floor-length frocks of chiffon in shades of jonquil and avocado were worn by the attendants, including Mrs. Stephen David of St. Petersburg, Fla., the matron of honor; bridesmaids Mrs. Jeffrey Vaughan and Mrs. Fred Hoelscher, Jr., both of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Scott Allen of Omaha; and the bridesmaids Miss Robin Ross and Miss Sally Olsson of Red Oak, Iowa. Fashioned with high Victorian collars and full, billowy sleeves, the jonquil bodices were snugly fitted above the Empire waistlines which were encircled with a wide band of Venice lace and satin ribbon in the jonquil shade. Streamers of the lace and satin descended to the hemlines of the gathered avocado skirts. They carried nosegays of miniature yellow roses and yellow daisies.

Fred Hoelscher, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen were Jeffrey Vaughan of St. Louis, Mo., David Jackman, Mark Ross, and Tom O'Connor of Omaha.

The bride chose a gown of ivory silk turganza over taffeta and Chantilly lace for her wedding. The lace, which was encrusted with seed pearls and delicate crystals, fashioned the Empire bodice, the wedding band neckline, and the flared trumpet sleeves. Appliques of the lace were repeated on the softly gathered A-line skirt, and bordered the hemline and the train of English net which was caught at back Empire height and descended to cotillion length. A satin bow accented with Chantilly lace held in place her elbow-length veil of illusion and she carried a duchess nosegay of white and yellow roses and gypsophelia.

Following a wedding trip to San Francisco, Calif., Mr. Hoelscher and his bride will reside in Omaha where he is associated with Dana, Larson, and Ruebal Architects. The bride was graduated from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Phi sorority, and Pi Lambda Theta honorary. She is also a member of PEO. Mr. Hoelscher is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where he is affiliated with Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Abby: Fat Fanny's Complaint "Hold's Little Weight"

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to "FAT FANNY," who complained about chairs in restaurants being too small. I am also fat and have been for several years. Instead of complaining about the chairs being too small for big me, I am now trying to make myself fit onto chairs. After being a glutton, it suddenly struck me that there was more to life than food. Without the help of one diet pill, I lost 28 pounds in 10 weeks.

Fat people always have an excuse for overeating. They're lonely, unloved, depressed, etc. Well, I'm divorced and have two children whose father refuses to support them. I live on welfare, have no job and my future looks bleak, but I am determined to make it a bright, skinny future.

"Fat Fanny" should shape up and slim down, and quit complaining about restaurant chairs that are made for the average person, not elephants. If I can do it, she can do it.

73 POUNDS TO GO
DEAR "73": GOOD FOR YOU! I want to hear from you 73 pounds from now. I have a hunch you'll make it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a shoplifter. I started out as a teen-ager. I always took small things and got away with it. I kept telling myself it would be the last time, but I just couldn't stop. I prayed to God to help me stop and I thought I had because I didn't take anything for over a year, then tonight it happened again. I just had to take something, and just as I was walking out of the store they came after me. They caught me with less than a dollar's worth, but I ended up paying a $40 fine plus the hurt to my family, myself and mostly to God.

I have promised God and myself that I will never again steal as much as one bobby pin.

and I think now I can keep that promise.

This letter is for everyone who thinks it is not so bad to shoplift an item or two. Never Start! It can get to be a habit, or a game, and it's hard to stop. Please correct my mistakes in spelling, Abby, but print this. It may help someone. Thank you. Sign me . . . SHOPLIFTER

DEAR FORMER SHOPLIFTER: You have paid the price, so drop the label. There is a lot of good in one who wants to help others through his own sad experiences. Thank you for writing. God bless.

Bridal Wear Unveiled

By NELLE GREER

New York — There was one thing missing in the Piccione which opened the New York Couture Parade of Fashions early Monday morning. This particular parade had to do with wedding gowns. — many of them beautiful. And the missing link that was not to be found was the Empire line. But, even as the seemingly here-to-stay Empire did its disappearing act, something new showed up on the bridal ensemble horizon — the chiffon veil.

The materials? Silk, ottoman, satin, and, of course, lace. The lace, however, was mainly treated as an overlay, although it did fashion one or two of the gowns.

One of the most unusual gowns was of pure white satin. Satin, in itself, actually doesn't fit into the category of "unusual" but in this instance, the satin was lavishly combined with jewels and white mink. A wide belt at the natural waist-line was of pearls, crystals and even a rhinestone or two. And that same jeweled motif alternated with white mink to band the long, narrow sleeves.

Under the heading of Victorian was another wedding gown, but no one in the Victoria era would have recognized it. To be sure, the bodice was demure, the sleeves really Victorian, but the skirt was a different matter. It was split right up the front to the knee.

There were wedding gowns of lace-appliqued satin — there were beautiful gowns of ottoman. And what made them beautiful was the classic line. No frills, no furbelows — just lovely lines. Then there was the unusual gown. The one with the heavy satin hooded cape worn over a straight line backless gown with a halter neck. The back, however, was covered with laticed pearls.

Many of the autumn brides will be interested in the "bridal separates" which have tucked in tailored shirts with pointed collars and a sleek, softly gathered skirt.

Can anyone visualize a "hot pants wedding gown"? It was in the show. The hot pants banded with white mink were worn under a long, fairly wide skirt split up the front.

All in all, it was the chiffon veils which caught our eye. They were long, voluminous, and quite lovely, as well as different. Naturally, the illusion veils, all long, bouffant and strictly non-mantilla, were there, too.

From wedding gowns and bridal veils we went to David Crystal's showing of suits and dresses where again the accent was on the natural waistline. David Crystal had a great showing of suits, separates, one-piece shirtwaist dresses and jumps — all exceedingly attractive and wearable.

This designer goes in for double knits, dacrons and imported wool tweeds with luscious colors. A particularly attractive costume had a tweed cape in black and white worn over a jumper dress in matching tweed which had a long-sleeved white silk blouse.

There were hip-length jackets with straight skirts and pleated skirts, and there were shirt dresses with no frills, no loose chains — just smart and dignified.

There were pantsuits, but not too many — some with tunics, some with jackets that were belted, and all in attractive shades of beige or print — and occasionally black.

Incidentally, with the exception of his sportswear, all skirts were below the knee. And since we just mentioned sportswear, we probably should tell you what the lady golfer will be wearing in the autumn. She will have a rather wide choice, but the one we have in mind is tweed. A jacket and short (not many) skirt in brown and gold, with a dash of red, tweed.

Afternoon Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Bonnie Sue Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyne Ferguson of Douglas, and Steven Knowles Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lambert of Sterling, took place on Sunday afternoon, June 13, at the St. Mark's United Methodist Church. Altar bouquets of white gladioli and pink mums served as background for the ceremony.

Miss Betty Ferguson of Douglas was her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids included Miss Sherri Skelton of Ralston, and Miss Roberta Cople of Bancroft. With their alike frocks of floral chiffon and pink satin they wore pink garden hats and carried baskets of mums, carnations and gypsophelia in shades of pink.

Jack Baldwin served Mr. Lambert as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Larry Carlson of Wayne, Dave Swanson of Lincoln, Bob Ferguson of Douglas, Randy Aden of Sterling, Terry Conkel of Minneapolis, Minn., Larry Wagner of Omaha, Bill Maske of Peterson, Iowa, and Bob Brammeier of Sterling.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of peau de soie and old world Venetian lace fashioned in antique white. The taut empire bodice of lace was accented by a tailleur bow at the ruffled mandarin neckline designed with fitted wrist length sleeves with a ruffled lace cuff. A defined dirndl skirt was patterned with rows of lace, sweeping to an aisle wide train of silk ending in cotton length and complete with narrow lace ruffles. A waist length antique veil was held to the bride's head by roses, gypsophelia and Stephanotis.

The bride is a junior at Wayne State College, where she is a member of Kappa Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Lambert is a senior at Wayne State College, where he is a member of Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity.

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

It happened in Dead Man's Gulch many years ago. Twelve good men and true listened attentively to the evidence.

It seems that East, a fit of rage in the middle of a rubber, suddenly pulled out his six-shooter and let his partner have it. East was promptly hauled into court before judge and jury and tried for murder.

It was agreed that the bidding went as shown and South wound up in six notrump. The fact that six diamonds was laydown was never introduced in evidence. Apparently the district attorney did not think it relevant.

West, a strictly orthodox player, led the queen of hearts. Declarer took the king and saw that he could not make the contract without utilizing dummy's diamonds. So he played a diamond and finessed the queen.

The defendant followed low without a quiver and the queen won the trick! It was a brilliant play by East and the only chance he had to beat the slam. He had quickly decided there was no chance of defeating the contract unless South could be induced to take another diamond finesse. Dummy's long diamonds would then become useless and the slam would go down.

It is impossible to say whether East's scheme would eventually have succeeded. After the finesse held, South cashed his five club tricks. The deceased followed to three of these but then discarded first a heart and then a diamond.

South promptly led a diamond, but even before he could play the ace to catch east's denuded king, three shots rang out.

TOWN TALK

Party fever is in the air this week as the Saturday afternoon, June 19, wedding ceremony draws near for Miss Shelley Clarke Kilbourne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Van Bloom, and Charles Garress Snell, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garress Snell, Jr., of Shreveport, La.

The showers began last Thursday afternoon, June 10, when Miss Jan Dunker and Miss Sally Wiese co-hosted a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Kilbourne at the home of Miss Dunker.

Then, the showers let up for a few days, only to begin pouring in again on Sunday, June 13, as Miss Sally LeBaron and Miss Marg Culwell hosted a kitchen shower at their home.

This evening, Tuesday, June 15, party goers will take on a casual mood, when Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods will honor Miss Kilbourne and Mr. Snell at a family picnic at their home.

Wednesday evening, June 16, signals another party, and another picnic. The hosts this time will be Mr. and Mrs. Richard Childs and the guest list includes friends, as the soon-to-be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garress Snell, III, take the spotlight.

During the week, Miss Kilbourne and Mr. Snell continue to be "showered with parties." but on Thursday, June 17, it will be a "ladies only" affair when Mrs. Clark Faulkner and Mrs. Harold Osborne give a lingerie shower for Miss Kilbourne at the home of Mrs. Faulkner.

Friday, June 18, marks the night before the wedding and naturally, it will be time for another party. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snell, Jr., parents of the bridegroom-to-be, will entertain in prenuptial courtesy dinner Friday noon with a luncheon at the Nebraska Club for the bride party and family members.

International Student Graduates

College graduation is always a very special and meaningful event. It is especially meaningful for international students who are graduating from an American University.

On Saturday, June 5, some 36 international students who belong to the Host Family Organization, graduated from the University of Nebraska. On Thursday evening, June 3, both the graduates and their host families took part in a pre-graduation celebration.

The event was held at St. Mark's Church on the University of Nebraska campus. Guest of honor was Frank Marsh, Lt. Governor of the State of Nebraska. Mr. Marsh presented honorary citizenship awards to all of the international graduate students.

Entertainment was provided by two of the students, Frank Wong and Susie Ling, both of Hong Kong, who performed on the guitar and sang.

Miss Agler Is Sunday Bride

Arrangements of pink and blue carnations formed the background for the wedding of Miss Patricia Ann Agler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Agler of North Platte, and Earle Dean Abels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Abels of Ogallala, which took place on Sunday afternoon, June 13, at the First Evangelical Lutheran Church in North Platte.

The attendants, including maid of honor Miss Karen Wall, and bridesmaids Mrs. Robert Henningson and Mrs. Daniel V. Agler, both of North Platte, and Mrs. Kenneth Bennett of Santa Ana, Calif., wore alike, floor-length pant dresses of white lace and blue chiffon.

Alan Reese served as best man, and the groomsmen were Pat Chalk, Bob Putman and Kurt Bradley.

The bride selected a gown of organza over taffeta designed in the Empire mode. Chiny lace fashioned the bodice, the ring collar, and formed an overlay on the shoulders of the Camelot sleeves which ended with a wide cuff. Beneath the bodice, the skirt was softly gathered into an A-line silhouette.

Upon their return from a honeymoon trip to South Dakota, Mr. Abels and his bride will reside at 747 C St., in Lincoln, where the bride attends the University of Nebraska. Mr. Abels attended Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Picnic Dinner

The members of Lincoln's Credit Women International will be entertained at a picnic dinner on Tuesday evening, June 15.

The event is scheduled to begin at 6:30 o'clock, and the event will be held at the home of Mrs. Woodrow Hamill, 1321 No. 79th St.

Strange Name At Top

Omaha — Perhaps the strangest line in this morning's Lincoln Star is the one showing Jack Van Berg in second place in the Ak-Sar-Ben trainer standings.

Van Berg has topped the Ak-Sar-Ben trainer standings for the past 12 years, starting in 1959, and by this date in the Omaha meeting, he had generally begun to pull away from the rest of the pack.

But this morning the name T. V. Smith stands at the top, slim as his one-point lead might be over the veteran Van Berg.

And Smith doesn't look like the stereotype of the image most racing fans have of a trainer.

The boyish-looking 33-year-old native of Mitchell, S. D., shows up for work each day wearing a tie and sport coat to send his thoroughbreds onto the track.

"I think the picture of a trainer is changing," he points out. "A trainer nowadays has to be a businessman. I've got 15 to 17 clients I train for and there's a lot of bookwork, not only for the horses, but for your help."

South Dakota Graduate

A degree in business administration from the University of South Dakota stands him in good stead when he sits down to figure out payrolls and tax deductions.

"I'm not sure why I went to college because I knew I wanted to go into horse racing," he admits, "but I guess I just wanted to get a degree."

He got his start in the thoroughbred business through an uncle, Myron Smith, who was a trainer.

"I worked with him during summer vacations," Smith recalls, "and started on my own 10 years ago, saddling my first horse on my own at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans in winter of 1961."

He started with six thoroughbreds, some belonging to his father, some of his own and some for Art Abbott, whom he credits for giving him the big push that got him moving toward the top in his profession.

"Mr. Abbott gave me some good horses, among them Barbaron," he notes. Barbaron has been one of the top money winners in his stable, joining Dunham and Mr. Swinger in the $100,000 neighborhood.

Horses Get Florida Vacation

Thoroughbreds in his stable get a special treat in the winter, getting to vacation in south Florida on his farm near Hollywood where Smith moved in 1963.

But for Smith there are no vacations. "You can't afford to take time off in this business," is his reasoning.

Smith is the trainer of Four Way Split, winner of last Saturday's 4-H Handicap here and there was some talk last winter about nominating the 3-year-old colt to the Kentucky Derby.

Smith just smiles when that subject is brought up.

"There's four of us involved in Four Way Split and maybe my partners had those thoughts, but I didn't," he says with a boyish grin. "He's a good horse, but I didn't think he was that good."

Admitting that some day running in the Kentucky Derby is a dream that every trainer has in the back of his mind, Smith claims there's another big thrill in racing.

"Taking a young horse and watching it develop until it wins a stakes race gives you a feeling of satisfaction," he observes.

Smith, who is called Vic by his friends, is the father of a 10-year-old boy and a 3-year-old girl, but he hasn't been able to get his son interested in horse racing.

He doesn't even like to come to the track," says Smith. "He's more interested in football and baseball."

Speaking of interest, Smith has created some in what in past years has been a drab race—the race for the top trainer title at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Amateurs Post Sub-Par Rounds In Tony, Luigi's

... BEST PRO SCORE IS PAR 72

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

The amateurs stole the spotlight Monday in the opening round of the second annual Tony & Luigi's Pro-Am Golf Tournament with amateurs Jim Shade of Norfolk and Ty Borman of Council Bluffs the only golfers in a field of more than 80 professionals and amateurs to better par at Holmes Park.

Shade, a member of the Big Eight champion Oklahoma State golf team and runner-up in the Nebraska State Amateur the past two years, conquered the 6,829 yard layout with a three-under-par 69 for a two-stroke lead in the amateur division over Borman.

The best the professionals could do was par 72 with Juan Elizondo and John Frillman, both of Omaha, matching normal at the Lincoln course.

Shade, admitting that he hit the ball "about as well as I can hit it," left himself with only short putts on the four holes he birdied en route to his three-under-par round.

He started the round by tapping home six-foot birdie putts at the 525-yard first hole and the 372-yard second and went three-under-par by two-putting the 505-yard eighth after hitting a 4-wood second shot to the green.

He lost a stroke to par when he bogeyed the 241-yard, par-3 ninth from a trap, but got it back on the next hole with a one-foot putt for his birdie at the 515-yard, par-5 10th, then parred the next eight holes to take the two-stroke lead in the amateur division.

Shade hit every green in regulation except for No. 9 and missed only two fairways during the afternoon.

In addition to Borman, his closest challengers going into today's final 18 holes are Jack Brooks of Omaha at 72, and Steve Bock of Lincoln and Milt Beal of Omaha, both at two-over-par 74.

The closest pursuers to Elizondo and Frillman in the pro division are Bob Popp of Omaha and Gerry Fisher of Lincoln at 73, one stroke off the pace, and Tim Nelson of Lincoln, Larry Romjue of Lincoln and Merle Backlund of Grand Island at 74.

Romjue was last year's amateur champion, but is playing in the pro ranks this year after giving up his amateur status to become University of Nebraska golf coach.

Nelson with his 71 and Bock with a similar figure teamed for a best-ball of 67 to take the lead in the pro-am division of the tourney.

But they'll start today's final round with only a one-stroke lead over the teams of Frillman and Beal Fisher and Tom Ludwick, and Paul Wilcox, pro from Sioux Falls, S. D., with partner Borman.

At 69 in the pro-am competition are pro Jack Hoskins and amateur Del Ryder of Grand Island, pro Bob Anthes Jr. of Omaha and Shade.

Teams led by Nelson and Frillman tied for the top spot in the pro-am, four-man, handicap competition decided Monday with 14-under-par 58s.

Nelson teamed with amateurs Bock, Bob Scott and Col. R. Gotner while Frillman's team consisted of Beal, Tony Roth and Charlie Graham.

At 59 was the team of Fisher, Ludwick, Quentin Bradley and Dale Markusson while at 61 was Wilcox, Borman, Porky Oltman and Ruben Worsler.

Tied at 62 were the teams of pro Rich Williams of Lincoln with amateurs P. M. Anderson, Larry Rowan and Karl Dickinson, Elizondo with amateurs Pete Jacobs, Jim Creighton and Tom Calvert, pro Merle Backlund with amateurs Rod Franz, Doug Dworak and Skip Griffin, pro Glen Bakeman of Norfolk with amateurs Don Bridge, Jim Ferris and L. W. Nelson, pro Clay Workman of Omaha with amateurs Mike Ley, Gordon MacRae, and Norm Weideman, pro Bob Schuchart of Lincoln with amateurs Gary Shields, Tony Alesio and Matt Freeman.

TULSA TRIPS SIU, 9-4

... Hurricane Only CWS Unbeaten Team

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — The Tulsa Hurricane found itself in a surprising and familiar position at the same time here at the 25th College World Series.

The surprising position is being the only undefeated team left in the series after upsetting previously unbeaten Southern Illinois, 9-4, Monday night. The familiar position is winning the first three games in the series, an accomplishment the 1969 Tulsa team also managed.

But in 1969, Arizona State whipped the Hurricane two straight in winning the collegiate baseball title after Tulsa had captured those initial three games.

And the Hurricane may face the possibility of duplicating the 1969 feat as Tulsa meets defending champion and No. 1 ranked Southern California at 8 tonight. Pan American eliminated Harvard, 2-1, Monday afternoon for the right to play the Sulaks today at 5:30 p.m.

A crowd of 9,006 watched senior righthander Steve Rodgers hurl the victory as he got stronger in the late going and struck out the last seven batters.

Rogers, now 12-2 for the year, fanned 13 in the game after getting into trouble in the fourth and fifth innings. SIU scored three runs in the fourth and one in the fifth, aided by the theft of five bases in those two frames.

The Hurricane scored two runs in the first inning, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and four in the sixth with a display of balanced hitting. Lefthanded batter Jerry Tabb started Tulsa with a towering opposite field two-run homer in the first frame and the Oklahoma team never trailed.

Coach Rod Dedeaux of USC feels his club has returned to form. "We feel we're back on the right track and can win this tournament," Dedeaux said. "We've had to come from behind most of the season because we have a young ball club that made mistakes."

The Trojans got off to an excellent start by scoring four runs in the first two innings. However, BYU rallied several times, but never quite enough.

A mental error by Cougar Mike McKay in the fifth inning which resulted in an out could have been the turning point in the game. McKay came too far off second base as he rounded the bag and a throw from the outfield was cut off. The relay went to second and McKay was put out.

If McKay had not been put out, BYU may have closed the gap to 4-3, because the next batter, Terry Sanford, singled and McKay could have scored.

This stopped the Cougars' momentum and Southern California tallied four runs in the sixth. BYU's Gerald Cardon didn't help things any when he let two runs in on a fielding error.

USC had runners on second and third with the Cougars' infield line to cut off the run when Fred Lynn hit a sharp grounder to Cardon. He started to field the ball and actually touched it with his glove when he suddenly turned his head and the ball skipped into right field, letting in two runs.

In the afternoon game, Pan American coach Al Ogletree's confidence in his bench was again justified. "I decided to let Bo McNurlen catch for us against Harvard," Ogletree said. "He's the third Catchers collided with Southern Illinois' catcher Larry Calafetti while trying to score in Sunday night's game.

A total of 11,332 watched the series Monday, bringing the four-day attendance total to 41,200 — down 2,159 from the record-setting pace of last year.

catcher we've used in the series, but he came through for us."

McNurlen, who only hit .914 in 11 regular season games, doubled and scored the game's only run.

The Bronco's Andre Rabouin went the distance in picking up the win in what Ogletree termed "a gut performance. Andre didn't go 9 innings all year," he said, "but he did go two complete seven inning games, so we're quite pleased."

Southern California's Sam Ceci was reported in good condition in an Omaha hospital with a double fracture of the jaw.

Giants Sign No. 2

New York (AP) — The New York Giants announced Monday the signing of Wayne Walton, a 6-foot-5, 245-pound offensive tackle from Abilene Christian, and their second pick in the National Football League draft.

Auburn's Lammle One Up At Holmes

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Dru Lammle, a member of Auburn High's state Class B title team, fired a two-over-par 74 Monday morning and then added a 79 in the afternoon to grab a one-stroke lead after the first day of the Nebraska Junior Golf Championships over the Holmes course layout.

Wood River's Craig Moyer and Dean Sukup of Cozad are just one shot back at the 36-hole break, with Gary Stieneke of South Sioux City two strokes away and Lincoln's Clint Dudley three shots back of the leader.

The 54-hole medal play journey will conclude with a final 18-hole round this morning.

Lammle's 74 was unmatched during the two rounds Monday, although eight others equalled or bettered his afternoon total to tighten the race in the fourth annual championships open to boys 15 years of age or younger.

"I wasn't very happy with my afternoon round," Lammle confessed, "especially at the way I got started. I dubbed my drive on the first hole, then hit it behind a tree, then in the sand trap I got a seven on the hole and then let it bother me for the next few."

Swimming Coach Says Top Diver Invited To China

Rochester, N. Y. (AP) — A swimming coach said Monday one of her top divers has been invited to visit Red China this summer with several other United States athletes.

Mrs. Betty Perkins said the invitation was extended to Carolyn Bennett, 17, of suburban Pittsford, a national AAU diving champion.

Mrs. Perkins said the invitation came in a letter from Evan Wilson, acting chairman of the World Youth Camp Organizing Committee, United States Bicentennial, Baltimore.

Patchen Fires Ace

John Patchen, playing with Kevin Metcalf and using a 3 iron, sunk a hole in one Sunday on the No. 7, a 100-yard shot, at the Jim Ager Memorial Golf Course.

Moyer and Sukup both agreed that "one shot isn't too much to make up, but Dru is a darn good player and will be tough to catch."

The three leaders all normally play on much shorter courses. "Ours in Auburn is a fine course," Lammle says, "but it's really mostly just a wood and a wedge. If you hit a good drive you don't have but a little pitch shot to the green. I don't have to use all the clubs in the bag. It makes a big difference playing here on a longer course."

Moyer said the big greens showed him the greatest amount of trouble. "It's pretty easy for me to three-putt from 90 feet," he laughingly admitted, "although I'm not unhappy with my scores."

Omahan To Captain U.S. Pentathlon Team

San Antonio, Tex. (AP) — Air Force Capt. Loren Drum of Omaha, Neb., winner of the 1971 Modern Pentathlon trials here, will head the U.S. team in world championship competition next month in Switzerland, officials said Monday.

Drum was named captain of the four-man team selected to represent the United States at the CISM (Conseil International de Sport Militaire) Championship in Thun, Switzerland, July 5-12.

Post To Werblin

Trenton, N.J. (AP) — David A. "Sonny" Werblin, former owner of the New York football Jets, was confirmed Monday to a four-year term of the State Sports and Exposition Authority and soon after was sworn in as chairman of the authority. He was appointed by Gov. William T. Cahill.

Sukup, who just finished the eighth grade yet recently won the Dawson County tournament against an adult field, also gained fame last fall in the nation wide punt, pass, and kick contest.

The husky redhead won the district contest in Omaha and the regionals in Kansas City before bowing out at the western championships in San Diego.

A hole-in-one on the 207-yard ninth hole by Tony Pesavento of Omaha highlighted the first day's play.

Pesavento said he couldn't see the cup on the elevated green and didn't know he'd sunk the ace. "There were a lot of people up there all pointing," he said, "but I thought I'd just come real close. I hit a four-wood on the frog hair in front of the green. Then it skipped up and out of sight."

The field will be divided into four flights of eight players each for Tuesday's final round. The 54-hole total will count only for the championship flight, with the other three divisions to be decided on the final 18-hole score only.

Pro Arte Quartet To Conduct Concerts, Classes In Lincoln

The internationally acclaimed string Pro Arte Quartet will return to Lincoln Thursday for a week-long series of chamber music concerts and classes at the University of Nebraska.

The quartet, which since 1940 has been the quartet-in-residence at the University of Wisconsin, will perform a formal concert at NU's Kimball Hall at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The free concert will include Haydn's Quartet in D Major, Ravel's Quartet in F and Bartok's Fifth String Quartet.

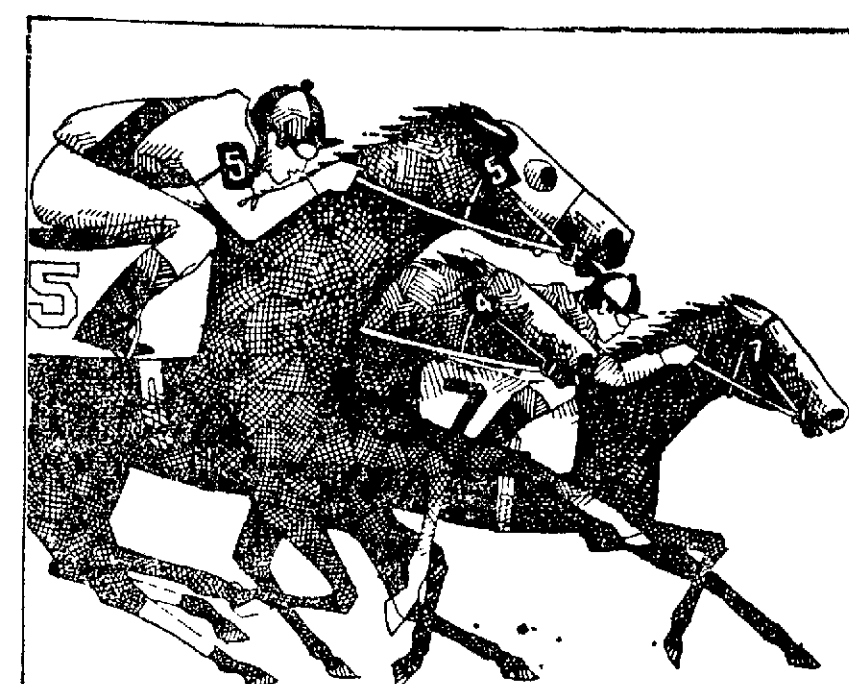

Members of the all-male group are violinists Norman Paul and Thomas Moore, viola player Richard Blum and cellist Lowell Creitz.

Sponsored by the Nebraska Arts Council, the National Endowment for the Arts and the university, the quartet will spend the rest of the week with NU summer session students, All-State participants, community adult ensembles and other interested persons.

Dr. Louis C. Trzcinski, NU associate professor of music, said the quartet will present three "dialogue" concerts, work with a number of student and adult ensembles and conduct several classes.

In the "dialogue" concerts, Trzcinski explained, the group will play various periods and styles and in between pieces explain the different styles in terms of the music's evolution.

For example, the quartet may present a "dialogue" on dances starting with the early suites and leading up to 20th century music.

Damage Suit Filed Against Lincoln Police

A Lincoln man alleging false arrest has filed a $180,000 damage suit in Federal District Court against the Lincoln Police Department.

Cecil L. Smith also asked that all mention of the incident be stricken from official records.

In his complaint, Smith said he was arrested and imprisoned in lieu of $8,000 bond for 24 days before the complaint was dismissed.

Smith was arrested on charges of sodomy, assault with intent to commit sodomy and armed robbery against Albert T. Reddish Jr.

The investigation of the alleged crime "was inadequate and reckless to such a degree that it amounted to gross and culpable negligence," Smith said.

Smith said he had never met or seen Reddish, knew nothing of the incident and was at home with his family at the time of the alleged crime.

Police, National Guard Battle Rioters

Albuquerque, N.M. (U) — Police clashed with young people at university campus Monday and National Guardsmen used tear gas in clearing a city park of rock-throwing youths as Albuquerque experienced its second straight day of violence.

There were no reports of injuries in the latest violence. Hospitals had treated at least 14 persons, including a policeman, for gunshot wounds after Sunday night's outbreaks of burning, rock-throwing and shootings.

Police fired several shots in the air Monday as they charged a crowd of some 200 young men and women on a corner of the University of New Mexico campus.

Crowd Retreats
After several hundred National Guardsmen moved onto the campus the crowd broke up and moved back to Roosevelt Park, where a police raid Sunday triggered the disorders.

Most of them Chicanos (Mexican-Americans) but with a sprinkling of blacks and Anglos, gathered in their park stronghold which has become known as "Chicano Hill."

They apparently were challenging a 7 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew issued by police.

The sweep through the park came after a wave of charges by the dissidents against the guardsmen shortly after 7 p.m. The youths threw gasoline bombs, stones, bottles and other missiles.

The guardsmen started moving into the park area and ringed the park about 5 p.m., taking positions behind the gutted remains of a burned public school administration building across the street from the park.

After the students had charged down Chicano Hill toward the Guardsmen, a Guardsman told those in the park over a bullhorn to "leave at once. Disperse and retire peacefully. We are preparing to attack against you. We are determined to maintain order."

Gov. Bruce King then signed a proclamation authorizing use of the guardsmen, because "the destruction of private property began anew. This cannot be tolerated."

King urged all Albuquerque citizens to stay off the streets.

The Army National Guard sent 200 of its available 1,300 troops to the campus to back up local state and city police.

Earlier in the day, two state officials addressed some 400 young people at Roosevelt Park where Sunday night's trouble began, apparently a fire police started to make an arrest for liquor violations.

Both men said they and Gov. King, who arrived in the city earlier Monday, met with representatives of various Chicano organizations such as the Black Berets, which sponsored the rally.

They also encouraged those at the park to attend a Wednesday night meeting with Police Chief Donald Byrd. A Black Beret spokesman said Byrd will explain what he has done about community complaints against police officers.

Police Chief Donald Byrd, who took over the department only recently after moving to Albuquerque from Dallas, would issue no statement on the police brutality charge except to say he had asked for reports from officers involved in the Sunday incident.

"Then we must go to the neighborhood to check the authenticity," he said.

These disorders also left 14 persons in hospitals with gunshot wounds. Many others were injured by thrown rocks or bottles, beatings or tear gas or smoke inhalation. Businesses on a two-mile route from Albuquerque to the park were damaged by fire.

Mondragon told the crowd at the rally: "I know we've had police brutality. It is not alleged but actual."

"We must convince the people in city hall there is a need for better communication. We must be truthful to ourselves as to them," Mondragon said.

Both Mondragon and Norvell said they would seek a police review board satisfactory to city officials and dissident groups.

Norvell said, "What happened in Albuquerque was inexcusable and indefensible. We must bring police brutality to a conclusion. Join with us to find solutions to these problems."

IN ALBUQUERQUE . . . stores are looted on Central Avenue.

No shots were seen to be fired by the guardsmen, but shooting was heard away from the park. The guardsmen, wearing gas masks and firing volleys of tear gas shells, advanced about five minutes after the warning was sounded. A cloud of tear gas covered the area.

In the day's earlier disturbance, several hundred young persons broke store windows in the university district after they left a rally at the park. They broke window after window at business houses and looted a jewelry store.

Gov. Bruce King then signed a proclamation authorizing use of the guardsmen, because "the destruction of private property began anew. This cannot be tolerated."

"Then we must go to the neighborhood to check the authenticity," he said.

These disorders also left 14 persons in hospitals with gunshot wounds. Many others were injured by thrown rocks or bottles, beatings or tear gas or smoke inhalation. Businesses on a two-mile route from Albuquerque to the park were damaged by fire.

Mondragon told the crowd at the rally: "I know we've had police brutality. It is not alleged but actual."

"We must convince the people in city hall there is a need for better communication. We must be truthful to ourselves as to them," Mondragon said.

Both Mondragon and Norvell said they would seek a police review board satisfactory to city officials and dissident groups.

Norvell said, "What happened in Albuquerque was inexcusable and indefensible. We must bring police brutality to a conclusion. Join with us to find solutions to these problems."

Both men said they and Gov. King, who arrived in the city earlier Monday, met with representatives of various Chicano organizations such as the Black Berets, which sponsored the rally.

They also encouraged those at the park to attend a Wednesday night meeting with Police Chief Donald Byrd. A Black Beret spokesman said Byrd will explain what he has done about community complaints against police officers.

No shots were seen to be fired by the guardsmen, but shooting was heard away from the park. The guardsmen, wearing gas masks and firing volleys of tear gas shells, advanced about five minutes after the warning was sounded. A cloud of tear gas covered the area.

In the day's earlier disturbance, several hundred young persons broke store windows in the university district after they left a rally at the park. They broke window after window at business houses and looted a jewelry store.

Gov. Bruce King then signed a proclamation authorizing use of the guardsmen, because "the destruction of private property began anew. This cannot be tolerated."

King urged all Albuquerque citizens to stay off the streets.

The Army National Guard sent 200 of its available 1,300 troops to the campus to back up local state and city police.

Earlier in the day, two state officials addressed some 400 young people at Roosevelt Park where Sunday night's trouble began, apparently a fire police started to make an arrest for liquor violations.

Police Chief Donald Byrd, who took over the department only recently after moving to Albuquerque from Dallas, would issue no statement on the police brutality charge except to say he had asked for reports from officers involved in the Sunday incident.
